

Well, you'll notice the Newsletter is even more different this time than last time. Unfortunately, the last two newsletter editors both walked off their jobs and once again, yours truly is left holding the bag. Thus the simplicity of this Newsletter. Because of the ten thousand other commitments I have, I have not the proper time to devote to this project, too. So, we'll all have to get along with the bare essentials.

Everyone knows the current Board of Directors, and how to contact them. If you need information on this, look in the last issue, call (303-776-3007), contact me personally (chairman@deltatech.com), or look on the website (www.lpboulder.org).

The next Board meeting will be at Cheng's Garden in Louisville, November 10th at 7 PM (dinner at 6:30). Here is the agenda:

Call to Order
Additions to Agenda
Directors Reports
Old business
Bylaws discussion and amendments
Bylaws vote
New Business

For those who are concerned about the bylaws.... The new Bylaws are meant to be a more streamlined version that would allow the current board to operate within the Bylaw structure as well as allow the current and subsequent boards to act in a more libertarian and self responsible manner. There is no loss of any integrity or structure, really. These new bylaws merely allow the board to operate in minimal manner, which seems to be de rigueur these days. If any one has a problem with these or wishes to discuss them, I suggest you come to the next meeting and air your complaints. The full text of the proposed new Bylaws are available upon request before hand. (Cost is prohibitive to mail everyone a copy....;-)

We are in the process of changing over our bank accounts as well as web hosting and list hosting. This was necessitated by the loss of the Membership director and the Treasurer at the same time as the Newsletter Director.

Since this whole thing is from the chair, it seems a little redundant to have such a section. But here's my editorial two cents. There was absolutely no one else to carry on the LPBC. In fact, if it wouldn't be for me, there would have been no LPBC since last year sometime. I basically browbeat the Treasurer, Newsletter and Membership directors to stay on for a little bit longer. I talked them into running "one more time" for the positions at the Annual Meeting, although none of them finished their last term. I have done everything in my power to hold together this organization....something NO ONE else wanted to do. Now that the directors are gone, at least one of them feels it necessary to take me to task for being "overbearing".... Thanks for the help. But I am not here to point any fingers, regardless of what others might do. Facts speak for themselves. I'm here to plead with the membership to stand up and make a difference. If you want to see a more libertarian society....it will NOT happen all by itself. If you want the neighborhood/world to be a better place, it takes hard work and co-operation from damn near everyone. Like our bumper stickers say....."If you're not part of the solution....You're part of the problem." I don't care what form your political activism takes....but for the sake of your community, of your world, do SOMETHING! Lead or follow....or AT LEAST get the hell out of the way of those who do. Constructive Criticism is always welcomed in libertarian circles, probably more than most. But carping and attacking and tearing down and questioning libertarian "purity" (what kind of an oxymoron is that?)....is all bullshit.

I find the delete key is becoming the most worn button on my keyboard these days.

How sad.

All that being said, I would like to state that it is quite invigorating to work with new Board members. Perhaps it is the fact that they are not quite so jaded as those who have fought the frustrating battle for years already. Perhaps it is just that they have good energy that has not been beaten out of them by their peers yet. Either way, it feels good to have some help in maintaining a Libertarian presence in Boulder and Broomfield Counties and in trying to make this a more libertarian society through grass roots political activism. My heartfelt thanks to the current Board of Directors.
